Who Is America's Next Top Dog Model?

Headquartered in Boca Raton, America's Top Dog Model (ATDM) is a national search for top dogs with style. Now in its fifth season, the crew traveled from Boca Raton to Hyde Park Village in Tampa to hold a casting call on Saturday, May 1. The theme of the 2010 contest is Go Green with Style, promoting Green Living. The event doubled as a fundraiser for TampaPets, a coalition of some 60 Bay Area rescue groups, the Humane Society of Tampa Bay and Hillsborough County Animal Services.

Gathering at Downtown Dogs to escape the heat, dogs and their humans waited in eager anticipation for their chance to walk the runway in front of a panel of judges. Three dogs were then selected for a chance to become a finalist in the contest. On May 26, Jo Jo Harder, style maker and creator of America's Top Dog Model, announced that Princess Ganna, would be America's Top Dog Model, appearing on the cover of the 2012 calendar.

To see the winner of the calendar's cover, Princess Ganna, starring Cavalier King Charles Spaniel from Jamaica Estates, New York, visit America's Top Dog Model website at www.americastopdogmodel.com. It looks like Florida was well represented (much).

Contestants were also able to upload their images online. Bailey was a Tampa Bay contestant, adopted from the Humane Society of Tampa Bay. Even though she was not one of the finalists she is a winner in our eyes. Always.
