In response to the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, America's Top Dog Model is extending its 2020 national "Fairy Tails" contest from April 30 to June 30.

"The extension will give every contestant the best opportunity to create a winning entry during this very challenging and difficult time," officials said in a press release.

Fairy Tails, according to company officials, should consist of a story that portrays a dog in an original fairy tale or "retelling" of a classic fairy tale. In addition, entrants must submit an original, professional quality photo of the dog portraying the character that is featured in the fairy tale.

One cover dog and 11 finalists will have their winning photos and stories published in "America's Top Dog Model's Book of Fairy Tails."

The grand prize winner will also receive a photo on America's Top Dog Model website cover page, six months of model management and career coaching, an original watercolor of the winning photo from Connie Benwitt Art, a miniature replica of their dog by Lucy Francis and a six-month subscription to PetPIX Academy online photography classes, among other prizes.
